Techniques and practice for left-handers with guidelines for parents and teachers.

A specifically-designed learning programme to help the budding left-handed writer.

Good handwriting needs perseverance and practice, whether you're left or right-handed. For the left-handed, though, handwriting development in a 'right-handed world' needs a little more help...

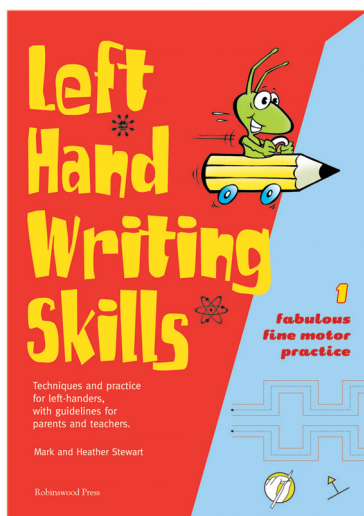

It is difficult, though, for teachers to find the extra time that left-handed children need. And this can result in frustration, not just in early handwriting skills but later, when handwriting is essential for essays, notes or homework.

But: help is now at hand! – in the enjoyable, highly-illustrated three-stage worksheets of the Left Hand Writing Skills series.

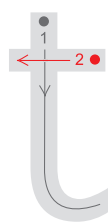

The authors are highly experienced in helping left-handed children, and run specialist teacher training courses, "Left-Handed Children – The Right Way to help!" in schools, LEA centres and other educational establishments. Their training guidelines have been endorsed by the DfES in the UK and incorporated into the National Literacy Strategy.

The three full-colour books are spiral bound at the top of the page for ease of use for left-handers, and include useful help throughout on the most effective position and grip.

Book 1 - fabulous fine motor practice

Book 1 establishes good basic habits of paper positioning and pencil hold, and develops the fine motor skills needed for accurate, consistent writing at a later stage. It takes the young writer from basic pencil handling and co-ordination exercises to formation of letters and simple short words. Each page is an entertaining mix of exercises, which parent and child will enjoy doing together.

Billy Beetle, Sam Spider, Willie Woodlouse and Sally Snail lead the left-handed child through a series of enjoyable worksheets designed to give the child the best possible start in learning to write.
